

What is it?

Healthelink is an electronic record of your health information.

It's available online for you and your health care providers.

The aim of Healthelink is to provide a central place where you and your health care providers can get a quick and reliable overview of your health and care.

The sorts of information collected include your diagnoses (medical problems), medications, allergies, test results and the dates when you visited a hospital, your local GP or a community health centre.

Health care providers

Your health care providers include people like your GP; a doctor that you might see if you went to the emergency department at your local hospital or a community health worker.

Your electronic health record will look something like this...
